

Alabama's peanut farmers have families too... and know how it feels to want to protect those you love the most. They never want to hurt someone by the wholesome food they grow - millions of families count on peanuts and peanut butter to deliver affordable nutrition. Since 2001 through the National Peanut Board, peanut farmers across the nation have earmarked more than $32 million of their own dollars into research and education about food and peanut allergies (peanutallergyfacts.org).

Resources for Pediatricians

PreventPeanutAllergies.org

PeanutAllergyFacts.org

LEAPing Past Food Allergies webinar

Preventing Peanut Allergy video

Easy Ways to Introduce Peanut to Babies video

5 Easy Ways to Introduce Peanut to Infants

* Order copies to hand out to parents - Email klhataway@alpeanuts.com

Are Peanuts Good for a Kid's Health? infographic

If you have questions, comments or want to chat -
Email Kaye Lynn Hataway at klhataway@alpeanuts.com.